FOR ANY NUMBER OF REASONS, A LAKE FOREST MBA JUST MAKES SENSE.

By whatever measure you choose, Lake Forest Graduate School of Management is a smart choice for experienced professionals who want to become the kind of leaders who get noticed and get results.

Small, dynamic classes (22 students on average, never more than 30) are built around the open exchange of ideas, not just lectures.

Our 100% Business-Leader Faculty is made up of successful practitioners, from key executives in Fortune 500 companies to entrepreneurial founders of start-ups. When they're not in the classroom, they're making real decisions that affect real businesses, every day. That means you learn more than theory—you learn what works in the real world.

Our students bring serious experience to class — 13 years on average, which is more than twice that of most other Chicago business schools. So they come ready to share practical ideas and fresh perspectives on today's business issues.

Our part-time program fits your full-time life. Three convenient campuses in downtown Chicago, Schaumburg and Lake Forest offer evening and Saturday programs to accommodate your busy schedule. We even offer classes at some of the area's leading corporations. And you can complete your Lake Forest MBA with only 16 course units, choosing from our two-, three- and four-year programs.

We're 832 students strong, with more than 7,200 alumni for good measure. You'll form lasting relationships with classmates and business-leader faculty members. And you'll be able to tap into a huge business network for your entire career.
